...Yes, of course.

On Jay 12th, the Canopy received an anonymous tip that opossums were being exploited to smuggle God's Blood.

However, their checkpoints failed to produce results beyond further straining relations between opossums and authorities.

On Jay 11st, a creature fell into the Shopping district after being chased from the Industrial district.

Its corpse was a highly mutated goat, eventually identified as one Mike Donnell, reported missing.

God's Blood was confirmed as the cause, but not disclosed to the general public.

September 19th, the Egon incident. A dragon was somehow lured into the country during a period where the Dragon Bell had been disconnected.

I suspected that God's Blood was used to mutate the local wildlife in order to do so, although I assume the sample I submitted was too contaminated to get a proper reading-

Oh, that? I meant to tell you.
